Goody, Clancy & Associates' award-winning multi-family housing designs (above) are the starting point in this month's BSA lecture by Joan Goody AIA. In "A Good Place to Live — Columbia Point, Tent City and other urban explorations," Goody examines the fundamental design and user issues addressed in successful urban housing projects. This presentation begins with a 5:30 p.m. reception on March 15 at the Boston Architectural Center, 320 Newbury Street, Boston. There is no charge for BSA/MCAIA members; non-members are welcome and pay $7.00 (or may join the BSA) at the door.

Design awards entries due

The call for entries for two BSA awards programs — "Boston Exports" and "Design Excellence in Housing" — were mailed to all members last month. The entry deadlines for both programs are this month — March 27 for "Design Excellence in Housing" and March 31 for "Boston Exports." Questions? Call 800-662-1235.

DRA hosts BSA visit

The BSA's "Inside the Firms" tour of architecture firms this month visits the extraordinary firm of Drummey Rosane Anderson Inc. in Newton Centre. The visit to this 65-year-old firm begins at 5:45 p.m. on March 16 with a tour of historic Colby Hall. The original classroom and chapel building for Andover Newton Theological School, Colby Hall (above) was built in 1865 and renovated in 1976 to accommodate DRA. Principals Owen Beenhouwer AIA and Carl Franceschi AIA describe DRA's current practice which includes the US Trust Building in Kendall Square, Two Newton Place, Dean Technical High School in Holyoke, and renovations at the Essex Hotel and for the Bank of New England in the financial district. The program is free for BSA/MCAIA members; non-members are invited as well and pay $7 (or can join the BSA) at the door. Members and non-members should call the BSA (800-662-1235) for reservations and, if needed, a map. DRA is at 141 Herrick Road on the Andover Newton campus, three blocks from the Newton Centre T stop.

BSA sponsors RESTORE workshop this month

On March 29-30, the BSA's Historic Resources Committee, chaired by Henry Moss of Bruner/Cott, sponsors a two-day RESTORE workshop in Boston on "Cleaning Masonry Structures: Current Technology and Practice." This intensive, two-day session draws on RESTORE's extensive national experience in providing restoration skills training programs for architects and allied professionals. The registration form is inserted in this issue of the ChapterLetter. Space is limited; register now.

Architectural buffet set for BSA

Architects Sandra Fairbank discusses restaurant design at Caffé Gianni in the BSA's "Dinner with the Architect" series this month. Come at 6:30 p.m. Caffé Gianni is in the new New England Life building at 500 Boylston St., Boston. Paid reservations for this March 28 excursion, part of the year-long BSA series underwritten by Shawmut Design & Construction, must reach the BSA by March 22. Include your name and daytime telephone number with your reservations ($25; $20 for BSA members and guests; telephone reservations by VISA or MasterCard are fine — call 800-662-1235).

Industrial development in the city is focus of BSA forum

"Does Boston Lose When Industry Leaves?" is the question for a March 30 public forum sponsored by the BSA at the Boston Public Library. Hosted by the BSA Urban Industrial Development Committee, co-chaired by Manjeet Tangri and Alan Nagle AIA, this City-wide forum begins at 5:30 p.m. in the BPL's Raab Lecture Hall. Details are included in an insert in this issue of the ChapterLetter. Speakers and panelists present a full range of views on the significance (or lack of it) of industrial development in Boston. A selection of related "Boston Visions" entries will be on display at the forum. There is no charge for this forum but seating is limited to 300, so members are urged to arrive early.

Is paradise lost?

"The American Suburb: Is Paradise Lost?" is the theme of a three-part lecture series beginning this month at the Museum of Fine Arts. Underwritten in part by the Boston Foundation for Architecture and co-sponsored by the BSA, the MFA lecture series begins with critic Robert Campbell AIA ("My Green, My Fluent Mundo") on March 22 and includes Jaquelin Robertson FAIA ("The House As City . . . The Mythical Structure of American Urbanism") on March 29 and Andres Duany FAIA ("The Decline of the Suburbs") on April 12. For tickets (BSA members receive a discount), call 617-267-9300x306.

Machado presents work in progress

Rodolfo Machado of Machado and Silvetti Architects is the guest this month in the BSA's controversial architects-only dinner and design discussion series, "Conversations." This monthly series of dinner-and-discussion of design was conceived by BSA President Peter Forbes FAIA to bring architects together regularly to focus on specific designs-in-progress. Each month a different architect presents a single project in detail for discussion with other architects. Machado's presentation on March 23 begins at 6 p.m. in the Parris Room (Quincy Market). The reservation deadline is March 21. Telephone reservations charged to VISA or MasterCard may be made to 800-662-1235 or 617-267-5175 ($55; $45 for members). Architects who are not BSA members may call either number for subscription details.

BSA sponsors new management education courses for designers

In a unique collaborative effort, the BSA has married its proven professional development resources (most evident in the annual, nationally respected "Build Boston" management education program) to the Boston Architectural Center's successful continuing education program to offer six special courses to architects and allied professionals this academic year.

The courses, all led by leaders in their fields and all available to BSA members at a 10% discounted course fee, include: "Getting a job . . . and starting it right" (marketing, fee-setting, contract negotiation), "Building a design firm" (start-up, choosing a partner, insurance, staff benefits & management, ownership transition), "Professional liability issues for architecture and engineering firms" (case-studies included), "Contract documents: how to prepare them" (includes project methodology), "Sound, light and energy design and technology for design professionals" and "Sources and Resources" (commercial interiors: product resources, furniture systems evaluation, etc.).

A full description of these courses and registration information and the complete BAC continuing education course catalog are available from the BAC (617-536-3170) and the BSA (800-662-1235). Registration is now.

Interior designers' "practice act" affects architects

National magazines last month hailed an agreement signed by the AIA, ASID and IBD to stem the national hostility surrounding the issue of licensing interior designers. However, even as architects and interior designers enjoyed the national truce, a bill was filed in Massachusetts that apparently would make it illegal for architects to design building interiors without an interior designer's license. The bill (H768) was filed by Rep. Peter Trombley of Waltham. As we go to press, the House has scheduled a public hearing for February 28. A full report will appear next month.

Of orange juice, money, paternity benefits, architecture and women

The BSA's exceptionally dynamic Women in Architecture Committee, chaired by Mani Farhadi, has a few advisories for this month's readers:

Item. The centennial celebration of women in architecture continues to attract strong financial support — new donors include Centros Properties USA, Gilbane Building Company, Joan Wood Associates, Todd Lee AIA, Martha Bil Manevich AIA, Perry Dean Rogers & Partners, Carol S. Sakata AIA, and Sumner Schein Architects & Engineers. These donors join others who have contributed over $30,000 to centennial celebration events thus far.

Item. On March 14, women in architecture gather at Sasaki Associates for breakfast and insights from the firm's first woman principal, BSA board member Martha Lampkin AIA (above). (BSA members, free; non-members, $7; RSVP by March 13 to 800-662-1235 or 617-267-5175.)

Item. On April 3 the Women in Architecture Centennial Exhibit opens at MIT and runs to April 28. For details, call 617-253-7791.

Item. On April 4, ADD Inc principal Carolyn Hendrie AIA (above) hosts another Women in Architecture "networking breakfast" in ADD Inc's Central Square office. (BSA members, free; non-members, $7; RSVP by April 3 to 800-662-1235 or 617-267-5175.) This breakfast will focus on design firm maternity and paternity leave policy and benefits.

Item. In preparation for the ADD Inc breakfast, the Committee is mailing a survey of design firm family-related benefits to BSA members. Watch your mail.

All of this sound interesting? To get on the bus, call Mani Farhadi at 617-926-3300.

On codes: a new regulation and a new CODEWORD

A new plumbing code regulation apparently requiring two handicapped-accessible toilets in almost all non-residential spaces was effective January 6, reports Codes Committee co-chair Lew Colton AIA. This new regulation came as a surprise to the industry and on March 24 the Codes Committee meets with State Plumbing Board official Louis Visco at the BSA to discuss the regulation. Readers interested in this and other codes issues should call the BSA (800-662-1235) to reserve a lunch (free for members) for the March 24 meeting.

The January issue of CODEWORD focuses on fire-retardant treated wood, "bed & breakfast" facilities, recent appeals decisions, license requirements, etc. CODEWORD is not available from the State Board of Building Regulations and Standards (no funding for it) so the BSA Codes Committee makes copies of each issue available on request. To obtain a copy of the 8-page January issue, send your request with a stamped (45 cents), self-addressed envelope and a check for $5.00 ($3.00 for AIA members in Massachusetts) to the BSA. Massachusetts residents add 5% sales tax.

With the current "Kids' Visions" exhibit at the Children's Museum until March 19 and a 70-board Boston Visions exhibit at the Federal Reserve Bank from March 6 to March 10, the impact of the BSA's national design ideas competition continues to grow.

Since the competition finale in November, exhibits of and forums on Boston Visions have been sponsored at Build Boston, at 75 State Street by The Beacon Companies, in the Pru Tower by Prudential Property Company, at the Art Institute of Boston by the Kenmore Association, and at MIT. Additional exhibits, neighborhood symposia and similar events are in the works.

The Federal Reserve Bank exhibit this month is sponsored by the North End Union, which also hosts a forum at the Bank on March 9. For details on this public event, call Robert O'Brien at 617-227-2927.

Also this month, the BSA's Urban Industrial Development Committee hosts a 5:30 p.m. public forum on March 30 at the Boston Public Library (see story elsewhere in this issue). The forum — "Does Boston Lose When Industry Leaves?" — includes an exhibit of Boston Visions entries. Admission is free. See the insert in this issue of the ChapterLetter.

Gifts to Foundation include memorial to Andy Weiser

The architectural profession and its allies continue to strengthen the Boston Foundation for Architecture with new donations even as the profession is digging deep to purchase its new building at 50 Broad Street.

"The Foundation is an extraordinary creation," notes Trustee Robert Doran of Wellington Management. "That a few architects could move the Foundation from concept to reality to substantive public impact so quickly and so decisively," Doran said, "is remarkable — and especially rewarding for poets like me who are associated with the Foundation." (The Foundation's grant-making activities were detailed in the January issue.)

The Foundation draws its strength from the continuing flow of gifts in the $100-$1,000 range from donors such as Harold Goyette AIA, and Doris Cole AIA, John Harkness FAIA and Sally Harkness FAIA, and Leers, Weinzapfel Associates.

In addition, the Foundation administers funds established for special purposes. Early this year, former BSA President Jim Crissman FAIA established and made the first contribution to The Andrew Weiser Fund in memory of the young Crissman & Solomon architect who died a year ago. "When Andy died," Crissman notes, "he had just begun working as co-chairman of the Boston Visions Competition. Perhaps this fund will help keep his name alive in this community he loved so much."

For information on how to contribute to the Weiser Fund or to the Foundation in general, or for information on how Foundation funds are used, call the Foundation at 617-267-9393.

The Foundation trustees, who determine the Foundation's investment and grant-making policies, include Chairman Graham Gund FAIA, Csaplar & Bok attorney John Bok, Beacon Management president Joe Breiteneicher, Wellington Management president Robert Doran, Earl R. Flansburgh FAIA, State arts council director Anne Hawley, James Lawrence FAIA, engineer William LeMessurier, contractor/developer George Macomber, Tom Payette FAIA, Wilson Pollock FAIA, Harvard Business School professor William Poorvu, Charles Redmon FAIA, Charrette chairman Lionel Spiro, and Centros Development president Ranne Warner.

ASR creates ties to national allies

The BSA's Architects for Social Responsibility Committee has established a more formal connection to the national organization called Architects, Designers, and Planners for Social Responsibility (ADPSR).

ADPSR, which invited ASR to consider this collaboration, is an alliance of architects, engineers, developers, and contractors. ASR's new affiliation with ADPSR will enable ASR members to expand the warm circle of light from our Peace Park Lantern on First Night into the ever-widening network of conscientious professionals who share our common goals.

We encourage readers in all professions to align their individual energies with our continuing efforts to promote world peace. Please join us at our lunch meetings at the BSA on the first Tuesday of each month or, if you would like to be placed on our mailing list, send your name, address, affiliation and phone number to ASR, c/o BSA, 305 Newbury Street, Boston 02115.

For additional information, call Darrow Shepherd AIA at 617-631-7906 or 617-367-0785 or me at 617-536-7093.

The BSA's Committee on Professional Appointments is compiling lists of Massachusetts architects interested in serving on city and town design-review, historic preservation and similar bodies. If you are an architect in Massachusetts with an interest in appointment to such roles, complete and return the survey inserted in this issue.

A new visual, computer-based system that simplifies the process of task management has been developed at Harvard. Known as Visual Scheduling and Management System (VSMS), the invention was created by Spiro Pollalis, assistant professor of architectural technology at the Graduate School of Design, and Yasuo Ueda of Tokyo's Shimizu Corporation who was a special student at the GSD last year. According to Pollalis, VSMS can be used in any management situation that requires coordination of professionals or labor for the accomplishment of a common task. Special projects, software development, manufacturing, research, construction and organization of professional offices are some of the invention's many applications. For more information, call Pollalis at 617-495-9939.

The BSA/CSI Architectural Technical Center is a regional resource center for architects and specifiers that has a collection of manufacturers' product catalogs, samples, building codes, standards, and similar items. Subscribers to the Tech Center receive a quarterly directory of manufacturers' representatives, catalogs, and samples available, and a list of technical resources such as special showrooms, technical specialists and consultants. Fax, courier, and library access are provided for material in the Tech Center. Call the Tech Center at 617-267-0271 or Mark Kalin AIA at 617-964-5477 for more information and details on how the Tech Center can be used. For subscription information, see the insert in this issue of the ChapterLetter.

"Thinking the Present: The Last 12 Years of American Architecture" is an April 8-9 conference at GSD that attempts to "stimulate an examination of recent American architecture" by having critics, theoreticians, journalists and practitioners dissect (and re-assemble?) Johnson, Venturi, Graves, Gehry, SOM, KPF, Pei, Pelli, Roche, Eisenman, Deconstructivists, the Florida School, etc., etc. For details, call 617-495-9340.

New Studies Show Post-Modern Architectural Design Linked to Crime Rate

View Through Palladian Windows Not Always Rosy

By Peter Kuttner AIA
Special to the Lobe

CAMBRIDGE — Recent studies by university sociologists point to shocking new evidence regarding the effect of Post-Modern Architecture on the thousands of unwitting users who daily visit these buildings. Now some researchers have uncovered direct relationships between the crime rate in a building and the number of fake pediments applied to a building's skin.

Not since the social research of the sixties into defensible space outlined architecture's role in shaping behavior has such a direct correlation been uncovered. Exit surveys of administrative workers leaving post-modern office ghettos show a rise in illiteracy proportional to the quantity of pink columns surrounding the building. Even the number of interior pastel paint colors is seen to affect the incidence of graffiti in a project.

Architectural historians point to a steady growth in the use of Post-Modern applies in the 80's. Known as "PoMo" by street users, it has proven to be remarkably addictive, even for designers who consider themselves casual users. Like other recreational drugs of the last several years, PoMo had its start on university campuses. Its earliest manifestations appeared only in a few Long Island vacation homes and some contract furniture showrooms, the drug of choice for an educated elite.

In a pattern of use that has been tragically repeated again and again, PoMo has moved out of its isolation and into the suburbs. Even as PoMo has lost its critical acclaim, local developers have discovered that anyone with a basic high school science education can manufacture it for themselves.

Building users today need to be educated to spot the signs of design addicts. Architects who start to tend towards loose linen jackets, scotch endorsements, and pictures in "People" magazine, are undoubtedly hooked.

Now sold under various other street names, like "historicism" or "contextualism", the silent plague

"Design Finds" found some real finds

The success of "Design Finds" — the BSA's holiday gift shop — is, in part the delightful architectural flavor of the numerous small and large gifts usually so hard to find. "Design Finds" treasures now available in The Architectural Bookshop include these items just right to celebrate St. Patrick's Day, Julius Caesar's demise, the beginning of Spring, and the imminence of Daylight Saving Time.

ARCHIBLOCKS — Several size & price ranges; maple pieces in cases. Samples shown: (A) mini Classic set, 51 pieces, 2" high, $50. (B) Desktop Classic set of 58 pieces, 4 1/2" high, $60.

POSTMODERN FRAMES (above left) — Made by N.E. artisans; bleached poplar in various pastel colors; 5" x 7" ($25) or 8" x 10" ($28).

TIME PYRAMID (above right) — Moving sculpture & timepiece created by an architect. Forms a perfect pyramid every 3 hours. One of Design Finds' most popular gifts. $45 (includes battery!).

MARBLEIZING KIT — Transforms almost any surface into luscious marble illusion. Instructions & materials included; covers 12 s.f.; non-toxic. $15.

This significant report was uncovered in a recent issue of Cambridge Seven's inimitable in-house newsletter, a Modernist publication edited by Peter Kuttner AIA.

All of these and many other goodies are in the Bookshop at 66 Hereford St. — or order by phone (617-262-2727).

General contractors collaborate on 50 Broad Street rehabilitation

Five major general contractors — Shawmut Design & Construction, CWC Builders, the George Hyman Construction Co., Morse Diesel, and Turner Construction — have joined forces and are contributing services for the rehabilitation of the new Architects' Building at 50 Broad Street.

"This is a remarkable collaboration," BSA President Peter Forbes FAIA notes. "The extraordinary generosity of general contractors represents a donation to this building campaign of major significance. The willingness of our allies to contribute their general contracting expertise is critical to our success."

Forbes noted that these five general contractors have multiplied the dollar value of their contribution many times over by stimulating other donations of services and materials from subcontractors, suppliers and others in the industry who have rallied to this effort to save a Boston landmark and make it a focal point for the industry.

For more information on the general contractors' collaboration and on donations of subcontractors' services and materials, call Shawmut's Tish Gardner at 617-427-4700.

Large firms dramatically increase support

The euphoria — first hushed, then exultant — that swept the BSA Banquet in November when the purchase of 50 Broad Street was announced has been sustained as an additional $130,000 in contributions have been pledged since that dramatic announcement, bringing the total to over $530,000 raised to date.

The rush of new gifts began with major new commitments from firms that already had contributed substantially. Among these are Payette Associates, which increased its pledge from $15,000 to $25,000; Sasaki Associates joined with BSLA (see related story) to add $15,000 to Sasaki Associates' original gift of $10,000; Cambridge Seven increased its gift from $10,000 to $20,000; Graham Gund Architects/Gunwyn increased its pledge from $10,000 to $20,000; The Stubbins Associates added $15,000 to its original $10,000 pledge; and TRO increased its pledge from $10,000 to $15,000. In addition, BR&A Consulting Engineers has increased its gift to $16,000 leading what BSA President Peter Forbes FAIA said is "an invaluable surge of financial, professional and emotional support from our engineering colleagues."

"Tom Payette's leadership of this fund-raising campaign has been joyously relentless and obviously effective," Forbes observed, "and Payette's success has been assured by the incredible array of individuals and design firms who are responding so forcefully to this opportunity to create a design professionals' oasis."

Forbes noted the ever-expanding size of Payette's fund-raising committee, which now includes two dozen architects, engineers and allied professionals. "This is a broad-based effort," Payette says. "We're all in it together, and we're all going to benefit. This is our opportunity. It is clear to me," Payette added, "that my job is made easier by the overwhelming enthusiasm for this effort among so many people."

100% participation is target

Led by Lee Cott AIA and Brigid Williams AIA, an effort to ensure wide-spread participation in the building campaign continues to prove effective. "We believe every architect and everyone who works with architects should own a piece of this rock," Cott says. "This building is more than a building, more than an architects' center — it is a place and a symbol for everyone who cares about the building industry."

"We hope to encourage everyone to join us," Williams added; "we hope to ensure that the 'shares' in this building are widely held." The "100% participation" notion is one that Cott and Williams hope will encourage everyone in the profession to contribute something. "The contribution might be $10 or $100 or $1,000," Cott says, "but the fact of participation is the issue, not the level at which one can afford to give. We want everyone to own this building — and we feel like owners when we invest something."

Among those who have made recent contributions — and who have shortened the distance to 100% participation — are:

BSLA and Sasaki Associates contribute $15,000

The Boston Society of Landscape Architects and Sasaki Associates have announced a joint gift of $15,000 to the Architects' Building Campaign.

"The collaboration of architects and landscape architects is, of course, long-standing in Boston," BSLA President Peter Forbes FAIA said, "but this exceptional commitment by BSLA and Sasaki Associates represents a level of thoughtful support that is unique and pivotal in our effort to make the Architects Building an industry-wide facility."

Forbes noted the interdisciplinary nature of Sasaki Associates as "an obvious model of the type of industry collaboration we hope is strengthened by the new building and already has been strengthened by the remarkable response of landscape architects and allied professionals to this effort."

Editor:

Nearly two centuries ago, St. Louis became America's jumping-off point — the point at which Americans heading west left everything they knew and understood behind, the place they departed for parts unknown to seek their manifest destinies on a frontier they knew absolutely nothing about — except that it held the promise of the future.

We invite you to join us in May at the 1989 AIA National Convention and Design Exposition in St. Louis. That's when St. Louis becomes the jumping-off point again — only now the new frontier we're embarking toward is the next century.

I'm also writing to ask you to invite, persuade, convince, cajole, and otherwise pressure every architect you know and every architect you meet between now and May to join us at the 1989 AIA Convention and Design Exposition. And I'll give you some suggestions about how to do that.

Tell them to come see the most remarkable urban renaissance in America . . . Tell them they'll rediscover a tight, rich, vintage downtown shaped and studded with architectural gems by the likes of Cass Gilbert, Alfred Mullet, Louis Sullivan, Romaldo Giurgola, Minoru Yamasaki, Gyo Obata, Philip Johnson, and Eero Saarinen . . . Tell them they'll take sidetrips to what may be Frank Lloyd Wright's greatest house and Bernard Maybeck's final masterpiece. . . . Tell them they'll stroll through the beautiful park that was the site of the 1904 World's Fair, where Judy Garland sang "Clang, Clang, Clang Went the Trolley" and "Meet Me in St. Louis, Louis" . . . Tell them they'll learn how HOK turned historic Union Station into one of the best models of renovation and revitalization that they'll ever hope to see . . . Tell them they'll explore the restored row-houses of Souard and the restored warehouses of Laclede's Landing . . . Tell them they'll walk down "private streets" lined with spectacular turn-of-the-century mansions and beautiful old churches and fashionable shops . . . Tell them they'll drink in the ancient red-brick breweries that have been producing legendary St. Louis beers for more than 100 years . . . Tell them they'll meet Augie Busch's Clydesdales . . . Tell them they'll eat in the only 5-star Italian restaurant in the Western Hemisphere . . . And tell them that's the truth. We hope you'll meet us in St. Louis in May.

The Architects of St. Louis

Editor:

It is a distinct honor to have been chosen for a Boston Visions First Award for our submittal, "The Fens and its Neighbors." We sincerely trust that the Boston community will embrace our vision for the Fens and its neighbors as [the Boston Visions jurors] have and realize opportunities identified within this very special competition in the future.

The Boston Visions competition is a landmark event by which [Chuck Redmon's] administration will be remembered with admiration.

Congratulations to all on the purchase of the building for "the Architects!" It is a great step for the professionals in Boston. It also conjures images of the old architectural clubs of Boston, New York, and Chicago — of smoke-filled rooms full of cigar-smoking stuffed-shirt architects engaged in heated discussions of Burnham versus Sullivan. [It is wonderful to hear that our] renovation plans include such a lounge space, a magnet for future architects to gather to toast or to roast the new works of the day . . .

I am an architecture student, currently in my second year, studying for a BA (Hons) RIBA degree at Manchester, England. Our third year involves a placement of practical training. My placement commences in August '89. I am interested in joining an American practice for this period. Before starting my degree, I spent six months touring the States, enjoying the country, its people and its architecture — which I found particularly exciting. As I am familiar with Boston and have two sponsors in the computing department at MIT, I would be grateful to hear from any architecture practice in Boston that could help me . . . [I can be reached at 10 Denham St., Manchester, M13 0FJ, England.]

The American Society of Architectural Perspectivists (ASAP) and the BAC are pleased to announce a unique two-part seminar with Richard Baehr AIA on Saturday morning and afternoon, April 1 at the BAC. Baehr, an architect, illustrator and ASAP award-recipient, will discuss his recent work with a slide presentation and display of the perspective/tempera drawing process . . . and will elaborate on his process of painting and demonstrate his adept brush work on examples of recent perspective layouts. Participants will have an opportunity to hone their skills during a drawing exercise provided for the seminar. The program will be offered in two segments to suit the interests of the architectural community . . . The seminar is open to architects, design professionals, illustrators, students and enthusiasts of architectural illustration. For more information, please call Bonnie Kahane at the BAC, 617-536-3170.

An ever-increasing portion of the American workforce is comprised of dual-career families and working, single head-of-household parents. The issues of parental leave, child care and elderly parental care have an increasing impact upon the operations of an architectural firm.

Through an informal telephone survey, the Women in Architecture Committee has discovered that many firms — large, medium, and small — have recently implemented or are discussing establishing equitable family benefits policies. By surveying all Boston-area firms and reporting the findings, we can establish a basis for comprehensive and sensible benefits policy recommendation. Many readers soon will be receiving a Family-Related Firm Benefits Survey. Please take the time to fill in the questionnaire and return it by March 17 to the BSA. We will collect the information, analyze it and publish the results, which should aid architectural firms in developing competitive, responsible, and attractive firm benefits for their employees.

Architects tour Italy this Spring

The Giotto frescoes in the Scrovegni Chapel, the Donatello bronzes in the Basilica del Santa, work by Titian, Bellini, Veronese, Tintoretto and Longhi, and the architecture of the Primitive Romanesque Church of the Hermits, the Classical Cathedral, and the eight-domed church of St. Giustina are among the delights of Padua. And the BSA is going in two months. And to Milan. And Venice.

The BSA is co-sponsoring this Spring tour to share ideas with our Italian colleagues — invitations to private villas for dinner, private showroom and factory tours, the professional conference in Padua with architects, designers and planners, etc.

The 8-day tour to Padua, Verona, Venice and Milan is May 5-13. Call the BSA (800-662-1235 or 617-267-5175) for information.

The BSA's annual survey of AIA members in Massachusetts interested in residential and small-scale commercial work was inserted in last month's issue of the ChapterLetter. If you want to be included in the BSA listing, which is distributed to several thousand prospective clients each year, complete and return the survey form no later than the ides of March. For additional copies of the survey form, call 800-662-1235.

The ChapterLetter

The BSA ChapterLetter is published on the first of each month (except in August) by the Boston Society of Architects/AIA, 305 Newbury St., Boston MA 02115. The ChapterLetter is a service provided to BSA members, members of the Massachusetts Council/AIA, the public, and everyone else with a sense of humor or an interest in 20th-century America. (For out-of-state subscription information, call 617-267-5175/Fax: 617-247-4764.) The BSA is a nonprofit, membership service organization and has been an advocate of architectural excellence and public awareness of architecture since 1867.

Letters to the editor, suggestions, criticism, encouragement and manifestations of the light touch are welcome. Typed, double-spaced material intended for publication must reach the BSA by the 12th of the month prior to publication; appropriate submissions are edited and published as space, temperament and prejudices permit.

Was your ChapterLetter late last month?

Scores of readers called the BSA last month to complain that they did not receive their ChapterLetter until well into the second week of the month — and thus missed (among other things) the invitation to the February 9 BSA reception for Anne Hawley in Quincy Market. The delivery problem is real — and has been growing.

The ChapterLetter is mailed first class on the first of each month. It is delivered by our mailing service to the Woburn post office. On the same day, the Woburn post office routes the ChapterLetter to its various destination post offices (your local delivery office).

The problem seems to be in Boston where the volume of mail is so overwhelming for existing postal facilities that delays are substantial.

"If we hand-deliver your missing newsletter, refund your dues and shoot the Executive Director will that be satisfactory?"

To address the problem, BSA events are scheduled in the second half of the month as often as possible so their announcement in the ChapterLetter is more likely to be timely. In addition, beginning this month, the Calendar (last page) will extend further into next month to tip you off to coming events. Other suggestions are invited. You also may wish to contact the Boston post office and your local delivery facility to determine if there is any way they can speed delivery.

We also received a few complaints about the plastic wrapper in which the ChapterLetter is mailed. A batch of bad bags crept into our supply last month — we apologize for those that inadvertently were stuck to the face of the ChapterLetter. Two readers also urged us to stop using plastic and to use a wrapper that can be re-cycled. We welcome suggestions of alternatives.

"Build Boston" is a Spring event

In one very significant way, the BSA's annual Fall classic — "Build Boston" — is actually a Spring event because it is in the Spring that "Build Boston's" workshop program is designed and constructed. If you are interested in leading, participating in or suggesting ideas for 1989 "Build Boston" workshops, now is the time to call or write Richard Fitzgerald at the BSA (800-662-1235 or 617-267-5175).

Voices

"... [Based] on biographical evidence, intelligence, in any absolute sense, is not a major factor in the production of distinguished architecture. Arrogance coupled with a sense of competition, and a pleasure in the fashionable and exotic, are much more important." — Georgia architecture professor Alan Balfour in the Journal of Architectural Education (1987)

"If a person offend you, and you are in doubt as to whether it was intentional or not, do not resort to extreme measures; simply watch your chance and hit him with a brick." — Mark Twain, quoted in OMNI (7/88)

"... I want to make lofty statements through my work and communicate the Renaissance idea that the world is suffused by a divine order. I do this by a generous deferred payment scheme." — British architect Kevin Pilley in Punch (5/20/87)
